May these people who are remembered here speak to us in the present. May we be mindful of and responsive to their call to us to continue to work together for the liberty and justice promised to all in our nation's founding document. May we take on the mantle of civic responsibility and meaningfully participate in our communities as we engage the past with the present and look to the future with justice as our standard.

Lift Every Voice and Sing - performed by Toussaint Santicola Jones, Albany High School Class of 2020 graduate

Closing remarks - offered by Paul and Mary Liz Stewart

“The legacy of the institution of slavery weighs us down as a nation, but, together, we can rise up and shake off the weight by carrying on the enduring legacy of our abolitionist forebears.”

What to the Slave is Your Fourth of July?

In 1852 Frederick Douglass challenged the rhetoric of America with the conditions of Africans in America at that time. Thought provoking questions about democracy and civic engagement are as relevant today as they were in 1852 when Douglass asked his audience, "What to the Slave is Your Fourth of July?"

The Struggle for Justice Continues

Gretchen Sorin, featured speaker for the 11th annual July 4th Oration, will offer commentary on the contemporary relevance of July 4th in light of Douglass's challenges presented to his audience in 1852.

Gretchen Sorin is Director and Distinguished Professor of the Cooperstown Graduate Program, one of the nation's leading programs in Museum Studies. She earned her MA at Cooperstown Graduate Program and her PhD in History at University at Albany, SUNY. After working as museum director, educator, and consultant to over 200 museums over 30 years, she returned to lead CGP. Her most recent publication is Driving While Black: African American Travel and the Road to Civil Rights. She is collaborating with filmmaker Ric Burns to create a documentary based on this book.

Jonathan Jones, featured reader for the 11th annual July 4th Oration, will offer an interpretive reading of excerpts from Frederick Douglass's 1852 speech.

Jonathan Jones is Commissioner for Recreation, Youth and Workforce for the City of Albany. Experienced public servant with a demonstrated history of creating policy, programs and opportunities to empower people, he is a strong community and social services professional with an MS in Educational Administration & Policy Studies from the State University of New York at Albany.

Litany of Remembrance Paul Stewart, UREC Co-founder

Join with us in honoring the courage and fortitude of those who escaped their enslavement, those whose lives ended in bondage, and those who dedicated their lives to the pursuit of justice in more recent times. Let us remember their names, their voices and their stories. Let us join together to honor them and be inspired by their courage and fortitude. (Selected readers will share the passages. We ask everyone to join the reader in responding with 'People of courage, people of hope, seekers of justice'.)
